NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

PRESIDENT HARRISON came to Brooklyn last night, to review the Decoration Day parade. Harrison was a soldier, and the veterans will feel a thrill of reverence as they salute him.

EX-CONGRESSMAN CARLOS FRENCH has been chosen to represent Connecticut on the Democratic National Committee in place of the late Wm. H. Barnum. Mr. French was elected to Congress in 1886 from the second Connecticut district by 1,323 majority, but free trade frightened him out of the canvass last fall, and W. L. Wilcox, Republican, was elected to succeed him by a majority of 788.

HON. ORLOW B. CHAPMAN of Binghamton has been appointed Solicitor General, in place of George A. Jenks of Pennsylvania, resigned. He was recommended by Secretary Tracy and Senator Hiseock. He will have charge of the government business before the Supreme Court, and receive a salary of $7,000. Mr. Chapman was a State Senator from 1868 to 1872, and Superintendent of Insurance from 1872 to 1876.

It transpires that during the session of the Presbyterian General Assembly one rural commissioner was fleeced out of $45 by a bunco stealer, and two others had their pockets picked of $125 and $20 respectively. Contributions had to be taken up in each case to defray the expenses of the unfortunate home. These religious assemblies should avoid the great and wicked cities. They can find ample accommodations and greater safety in rural towns like Saratoga and Chautauqua.

THE CORONER'S jury in the case of Bishop, the midwife, decides that death was due to calapsoy, and that the dissection by the doctors was performed in good faith. This probably acquits them of murder, but the people of the state would like to know whether it justifies them in cutting up the body without the consent of the members of his family. Body-snatching has heretofore been treated as an infamous crime; but wherein did the appropriation and dissection of Bishop's body differ from body-snatching?

THREE British war-ships, the Swiftsure, Amphion and Defender, sailed yesterday from Victoria for Behring Sea, where they propose to defend the English seal fishers. The Kankaks are greatly excited, and predict an immediate rupture between England and the United States. The sea was recognized throughout the world as exclusively American property until Mr. Cleveland let the British sealers in. The value of their sealings is already reckoned by millions. It was an unpleasant legacy of cowardice and treachery to be passed over to a succeeding administration, but Gen. Harrison will probably be able to restore American rights in the sea.

THE Albany Argus sends forth a wall of harmony over the Cleveland banquet. It thinks that in Mr. Cleveland's speech there might have been an allusion to the "splendid efforts" made in the late campaign by Gov. Hill. It may not be good politics in the Argus to point out the fact that Cleveland never mentioned or recognized Hill in his speech, but it is the truth nevertheless. It was a cruel snub, but it shows Cleveland's estimate of Hill's campaign work. But Hill got even with the ex-President by repeatedly reminding him that his blunders brought the party to defeat. The Democracy is getting into a condition of harmony most delightful to behold.

At a meeting of Prohibitionists in Baltimore yesterday a declaration was adopted to the effect that they would not oppose but would favor a law for that city with the restriction features of the Philadelphia law and some of those that are in the laws of Massachusetts. For the counties they prefer local option. This action, following the declaration of Gen. Fisk in favor of high license, is very significant. It indicates that the light of reason and common sense is illuminating the intellects of those who have hitherto insisted on absolute prohibition or nothing. High license is gaining ground everywhere.

CONTRACTOR SNAITH probably considers the refusal of the Assembly to recommend his prosecution an acquittal, for he has put in a demand for the $30,000 of the ceiling contract appropriation which was withheld by the Comptroller until the job should be finished. As the committee of experts reported that Snaith had already been paid $120,000 in excess of a legitimate profit, the exhibit of gall by the Italian is likely to incite a demand from the people that the Attorney General or the District Attorney of Albany county proceed to business. Neither of these officials is required to wait upon orders from the Legislature when a criminal requires attention. Attorney General Tabor could, by convicting Snaith and his fellow conspirators, make himself the most popular man in the state.

THERE is no doubt that the Democratic Legislature of New Jersey last winter intended to pass a liquor law that would exactly suit the dealers. The Werts bill passed with the entire approval of the brewers and saloon men, who had representatives on the ground. Now it is found to be wrong. The license was cut down to $250, and this is found to be much too high. County local option was abolished, but this only restored local option by towns, which is even more offensive. Then the discovery was made that the retailers were forbidden to sell by the quart, and this shut off the growler trade. The proposition was then made to take out two licenses, but this the law does not permit. Next it was discovered that the bottlers must take out licenses, and that no bottles holding less than a quart could be sold. And the final crash has come in the revelation, made yesterday at Newark, that the law made void all existing licenses on the 20th inst. and that the whole trade has been doing an illegal business since. Now comes upon the Legislature for its stupidity are heard from every place where liquor is sold, and the statesmen who had a hand in framing the Werts bill begin to talk of going out of politics.

Salmon Scarce in Penobscot River—In the Chamber of Deputies—Siberian Railroad.

M. Laguerre gave notice in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday that he would interpellate the Government in relation to the delay of the Senate in making a report in the case of General Boulanger. The President replied that it would be impossible to permit such an interpellation; that the Senate was entirely independent in this matter, as the issue was of a judicial character, and that the Chamber had no right or power to interfere. M. Laguerre's report that if no debate was permitted on his interpellation public opinion would severely judge parliamentarism, and that the Chamber would exhibit a fear of universal suffrage, provoked an uproar. M. de Cassagnac's denunciation of the President's decision as an ignominious mockery of justice added to the confusion and led to his censure by the Chamber.

Fly fishermen and the owners of weirs on the Penobscot River in Maine are asking: "Why don't we take more salmon?" Up to the present time the salmon have been taken in only small quantities this season, and the dealers have hundreds of orders which they are unable to fill. Fish-Commissioner Stillwell thinks that a recent washout injured the fly-fishing, yet that is all over, and the water is clearing again. He says that the large quantity of sawdust annually dumped into the river from saw-mills and the poisonous refuse from the pulp-mills are undoubtedly having a very injurious effect on the salmon fishing, and that it is only a question of time, if the number of pulp-mills keeps on increasing, when the refuse from these mills will completely destroy the salmon-fishing.

In a recent sitting of the Austrian Reichsrath Count Schonborn, Minister of Justice, said that he had instructed the Public Prosecutors to be more careful in confiscating newspapers, and not to consider every criticism on the Government as an offence to be met with contempt against the authorities. Since October last no fewer than 1,295 confiscations of newspapers have taken place. The death of Crown Prince Rudolph alone led to 730 confiscations.

At Loyal Oak, Lancaster County, Penn., yesterday, while a number of farmers were assisting Jacob Boersler in a barn raising, one of the heavy beams fell upon a score of workers. It may not be good politics in the ARGUS to point out the fact that Cleveland never mentioned or recognized Hill in his speech, but it is the truth nevertheless. It was a cruel snub, but it shows Cleveland's estimate of Hill's campaign work. But Hill got even with the ex-President by repeatedly reminding him that his blunders brought the party to defeat. The Democracy is getting into a condition of harmony most delightful to behold.

At a meeting of Prohibitionists in Baltimore yesterday a declaration was adopted to the effect that they would not oppose but would favor a law for that city with the restriction features of the Philadelphia law and some of those that are in the laws of Massachusetts. For the counties they prefer local option. This action, following the declaration of Gen. Fisk in favor of high license, is very significant. It indicates that the light of reason and common sense is illuminating the intellects of those who have hitherto insisted on absolute prohibition or nothing. High license is gaining ground everywhere.

CONTRACTOR SNAITH probably considers the refusal of the Assembly to recommend his prosecution an acquittal, for he has put in a demand for the $39,000 of the ceiling contract appropriation which was withheld by the Comptroller until the job should be finished. As the committee of experts reported that Snaith had already been paid $120,000 in excess of a legitimate profit, the exhibit of gall by the thug is likely to incite a demand from the people that the Attorney General or the District Attorney of Albany county proceed to business. Neither of these officials is required to wait upon orders from the Legislature when a criminal requires attention. Attorney General Tabor could, by convicting Snaith and his fellow conspirators, make himself the most popular man in the state.

THERE is no doubt that the Democratic Legislature of New Jersey last winter intended to pass a liquor law that would exactly suit the dealers. The Werts bill passed with the entire approval of the brewers and saloon men, who had representatives on the ground. Now it is found to be all wrong. The license was cut down to $350, and this is found to be much too high. County local option was abolished, but this only restored local option by towns, which is even more offensive. Then the discovery was made that the retailers were forbidden to sell by the quart, and this shut off the growler trade. The proposition was then made to take out two licenses, but the law does not permit. Next it was discovered that the bottlers must take out licenses, and that no bottles holding less than a quart could be sold. And the final crash has come in the revelation made yesterday at Newark, that the law made void all existing licenses on the 20th inst., and that the whole trade has been doing an illegal business since. Now comes upon the Legislature for its stupidity are heard from every place where liquor is sold, and the statemen who had a hand in framing the Werts bill begin to talk of going out of politics.

NEWS FROM POINTS FAR AND NEAR. Salmon Seared in Penobscot River.—In the Chamber of Deputies.—Siberian Railroad.

M. Laguerre gave notice in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that he would interpellate the Government in relation to the delay of the Senate in making a report in the case of General Boulanger. The President replied that it would be impossible to permit such an interpellation; that the Senate was entirely independent in this matter, as the issue was of a judicial character, and that the Chamber had no right or power to interfere. M. Laguerre's retort that if no debate was permitted on his interpellation public opinion would severely judge parliamentarism, and that the Chamber would exhibit a fear of universal suffrage, provoked an uproar. M. de Cassagnac's denunciation of the President's decision as an ignominious mockery of justice added to the confusion and led to his censure by the Chamber.

Fly fishermen and the owners of weirs on the Penobscot River in Maine are asking: "Why don't we take more salmon?" Up to the present time the salmon have been taken in only small quantities this season, and the dealers have hundreds of orders which they are unable to fill. Fish Commissioner Stillwell thinks that a recent washout injured the fly-fishing, yet that is all over, and the water is clear again. He says that the large quantity of sawdust recently dumped in the river from saw mills and the poisonous refuse from the pulp-mills are undoubtedly having a very injurious effect on the salmon fishing, and that it is only a question of time, if the number of pulp-mills keeps on increasing, when the refuse from these mills will completely destroy the salmon fishing.

In a recent sitting of the Austrian Reichsrath Count Schönborn, Minister of Justice, said that he had instructed the Public Prosecutors to be more careful in confiscating newspapers, and not to consider every criticism on the Government as "inciting to hatred and contempt against the authorities." WATERVILLE, Me., May 30.—The President of Colby College, acting under instructions of the Trustees, has expelled two Freshmen and suspended until Commencement two Seniors, said to have been the leaders in the hazing of some girl students. The hazing consisted of attracting the girls to the windows of their dormitories at night and then playing the hose on them. The escape would have been passed over had not a highly colored version of the affair been published in the newspapers, the girls having been greatly incensed at the act.

It is said, however, that all the girls except one, whose father is a Trustee, were averse to having the matter referred to the Faculty.

NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

PRESIDENT HARRISON came to Brooklyn last night, to review the Decoration Day parade. Harrison was a soldier, and the veterans will feel a thrill of reverence as they salute him.

EX-CONGRESSMAN CARLOS FRENCH has been chosen to represent Connecticut on the Democratic National Committee in place of the late Wm. H. Barnum. Mr. French was elected to Congress in 1886 from the second Connecticut district by 1,323 majority, but free trade frightened him out of the canvass last fall, and W. L. Wilcox, Republican, was elected to succeed him by a majority of 768.

HON. ORLOW B. CHAPMAN of Binghamton has been appointed Solicitor General, in place of George A. Jenks of Pennsylvania, resigned. He was recommended by Secretary Tracy and Senator Hiseock. He will have charge of the government business before the Supreme Court, and receive a salary of $7,000. Mr. Chapman was a State Senator from 1868 to 1872, and Superintendent of Insurance from 1872 to 1876.

It transpires that during the session of the Presbyterian General Assembly one rural commissioner was fleeced out of $45 by a bunco stealer, and two others had their pockets picked of $125 and $20 respectively. Contributions had to be taken up in each case to defray the expenses of the unfortunate homes. These religious assemblies should avoid the great and wicked cities. They can find ample accommodations and greater safety in rural towns like Saratoga and Chautauqua.

THE CORONER'S jury in the case of Bishop, the mild reader, decides that death was due to cataplexy, and that the dissection by the doctors was performed in good faith. This probably acquits them of murder, but the people of the state would like to know whether it justifies them in cutting up the body without the consent of the members of his family. Body-snatching has heretofore been treated as an infamous crime; but wherein did the appropriation and dissection of Bishop's body differ from body-snatching?

THREE British war-ships, the Swiftsure, Amphion and Defender, sailed yesterday from Victoria for Behring Sea, where they propose to defend the English seal fishers. The Kamiks are greatly excited, and predict an immediate rupture between England and the United States. The sea was recognized throughout the world as exclusively American property until Mr. Cleveland let the British sealers in. The value of their sealings is already reckoned by millions. It was an unpleasant legacy of cowardice and treachery to be passed over to a succeeding administration, but Gen. Harrison will probably be able to restore American rights in the sea.

WATERVILLE, Me., May 30.—The President of Colby College, acting under instructions of the Trustees, has expelled two Freshmen and suspended until Commencement two Seniors, said to have been the leaders in the hazing of some girl students. The hazing consisted of attracting the girls to the windows of their dormitory at night, and then playing the hose on them. The escapade would have been passed over had not a highly-colored version of the affair been published in the newspapers, the girls having been greatly incensed at the notoriety given them. It is said, however, that all the girls except one, whose father is a Trustee, were averse to having the matter referred to the Faculty.

He testified that while he was in Indianapolis last year General Harrison, now President of the United States, said that every honest man and lover of liberty would rather share the company of William O'Brien in Tullamore jail than that of the Viceroys in Dublin Castle. Mr. O'Connor said that when he took office in the League he found many of the books fragmentary and in arrears. It was impossible to do anything with them. He did not know whether the books which the Government seized during the administration of Chief Secretary Foster had been destroyed. Presiding Judge Hannen ordered that inquiries be made about these books.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Indications for Friday: Rain, followed by cooler weather.

OUR STREETS.

To the Editor of the Freeman:
In a communication made not long since, I remarked that if the bluestone teams were allowed to draw their loads over our city streets it would be impossible to keep the said streets in order, roller or no roller, or worse to that effect. My observations on this subject have been confirmed by the fact that the tire of the vehicle shall demand a proper relation to the load sustained, no good streets can be maintained in this City over which these loads are drawn. The cost of maintaining in Wall-street, laid with so much care only a few years since, is now deeply indented with the tracks of these loads. This, however, is a small part of the damage done as it is on the line of the tramway, and is only mentioned as showing the effect of this kind of traffic. It is now being largely transferred over Union and Hasbrouck-avenues, and the same result is being produced. How long can any decent streets be maintained over this route with such loads traveling them? Only yesterday two loads of four horses pulled a stone on the street, and the result was a deep rut in the pavement. This, after a soaking rain, and these streets, which, when improved, assessed on the adjoining property, were perfectly level.

Can the City afford it? It seems to me that it cannot. Look at all some of the streets that have been assessed for their improvement and see the shock which the City has received. The answer cannot be otherwise. Union-avenue itself, which cost some $15,000, is in many places worn half way through the pavement and the City is now obliged to keep it sprinkled in dry weather and scraped and coddled in wet weather. If this is the result of such a traffic, what will be the result of other streets that receive no such attention? Part of the lower end of the city is now being torn up by the street car tracks. The result is a deep rut in the pavement. This, after a soaking rain, and these streets, which, when improved, assessed on the adjoining property, were perfectly level.

The above letter from Hon. James G. Lindsley brings prominently forward the question of the preservation of our streets. Union-avenue was paved at large cost, and seventy-five per cent assessed on the adjoining property. Other streets have been paved in the same manner. After such large expenditures, it is clearly the duty of the Common Council to protect these streets from injury and keep them in good order. But every one knows that Union-avenue has not been kept in good order and is now in bad condition. The Common Council passes resolutions ordering about twice as much work on the streets as the working force employed by the city can do, and the result is the work is not done. For want of attention on the part of the city authorities, wagons carrying seven tons or more, with the ordinary narrow tire, are allowed to use the avenue and cut it to pieces. Unless this practice is promptly stopped, Union Avenue, which should be a fine drive, will soon be in a worse condition than an ordinary country road, and the property which has paid large assessments for the purpose of having good streets will be greatly injured.

The year has rolled around, and while some of the members have failed to fulfill their vow, seven have become endowed with husbands and entered upon conjugal lives of the happiest description. Some of them have encountered parental objections; a few have been obliged to resort to elopements and even temporary concealments, but where is the maiden who would not respect her oath in such a case and brave the stoutest obstacles to its fulfillment? And as one after another has wedded, the magical garters have been handed over to the chosen bridesmaids, and in every instance she became the succeeding bride. The gift was in effect an election of the giver's dearest friend among the sisters to follow in her footsteps. The unwedded ones have high hopes, and in a few weeks it is believed that the society will be dissolved owing to circumstances over which not one of them will have absolute control because of having surrendered herself to a husband. Who shall say hereafter that Aphrodite is not vindicated?

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Star says the Democrats expect to carry the next State Senate. Confidently, we can tell our contemporary that whatever pleasure its readers may derive from contemplating that idea they will have to take out in expectancy.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Nothing more indicative of the change that has come over the French people has yet been afforded than the fact that in the election for Senators in the Aisne and Doubs departments not a single vote was cast for General Boulanger. Siebourg. The man on horseback!—Philadelphia Record.

Dr. Hammond says that for drinking purposes water should never be below fifty degrees. The cost of the ice that is used to cool down the water is a very large item added to the expense of the whisky that is used to warm it up again, is one of the things that is keeping so many people poor.— Rochester Union.

"Les" Faulkner is one of the shrewdest and sharpest of bad men and his reputation is too well known to need comment. His shedding tears is a trick of the trade just as is bringing a man's wife into court with him in her arms to influence the jury in behalf of the man. "Les" ought to come to Auburn.—Auburn Advertiser.

It is said that of the senior class at Yale forty-five favor free trade, forty-three are protectionists, while eighteen desire a reform in the present tariff. These facts are of interest chiefly as a basis of comparison with the views the same 116 will express when rubbing against the world has changed their theories into practical ideas.—Utica Herald.

It is plain to see that Mr. Cleveland, at one time attributed his political success less to the Democratic party than to political forces outside of it, and entertained, if he did not deliberately plan, a scheme to seek for nomination on his non-party record. But he comes forward now as an old-fashioned, untutored, rock-ribbed, moss-backed Democrat. He is a partisan from Wayback. To the Democracy of this country his speech may be interpreted briefly: "You hear me a shoutin!"—Rochester Post-Express.

I refuse to believe, however, the story that Lord Sackville, as a party member, presented to the President-elect the contents of his wine cellar for use in the White House, and then left the English servants to take the places of the colored servants, as has been retained by President Cleveland.—Governor Hill.

That is right, Governor Hill; don't believe it. And your action in referring to such a malicious rumor as the above is a far less dignified proceeding for the Governor of the Empire state of the Union than it would be for President Harrison to call attention to your relations with William M. Tweed, the New York aqueduct job, the Assembly ceiling, and the fact that he never carried a record that has been lying around loose in the state of New York since your first dined your political knee-breeches.—Albany Journal.

down upon Sullivan, as the one person who had a motive for the plot and the power to carry it to a consummation. Sullivan is guilty of one cruel, cold-blooded murder, committed years ago, his easy escape from the consequences of which was not calculated to inspire in him a terror of the law.

WHERE CRIME IS ALWAYS EXPECTED.

Under the new Massachusetts license law hotels are placed under very strict rules. They can sell no liquor except to guests, and no one can enter and hire a room. The mere act of registering is not sufficient. Probably the Massachusetts landlords will rent a room to "guests" two or three minutes, for a cent, and make a discount of a penny on the drink for cash.—Albany Advertiser.

It is a singular fact that in relation to every law for the restriction of the liquor traffic there is universal expectation of devices for evading and breaking it. It is not so with laws on other subjects. All persons are subjected to legal restrictions, which may prove more or less inconvenient according to circumstances. But they do not all go to work to nullify disagreeable laws, thus putting themselves among the criminal classes. It is reserved almost exclusively for the liquor trade to do this. There never was a law enacted in relation to the business which it did not violate and defy. Even the Sabbath, which all other vocations respect and observe, is regarded by it as an infringement upon valuable time, which is needed for business purposes. And yet saloon men are surprised that the people regard their business as an evil and call for stouter laws against it. It is time to talk about getting better ones is not very flattering just at present. And if liquor men do not desire more stringent legislation, they should at least set the example of law-abiding citizens. The American people do not like to be deceived, persistent and professional criminals. And every law-breaker is a criminal. Here is a definition of "Crime" from Webster: "Any violation of law, either divine or human; an omission of a duty which is commanded, or the commission of an act which is forbidden by law." And a "Criminal" is one who is "guilty of crime; tainted with crime." The Massachusetts landlords who adopt the device suggested in the quotation at the beginning of this article, make a criminal of himself, and society will not fail to put the brand upon him.

A SISTERHOOD FOR MARRIAGE.
A little less than one year ago twelve New Haven maidens formed themselves into a sisterhood, and each swore an oath to her fellow members that she would be married before twelve months rolled around. It was also a part of the compact that the one first married should choose a bridesmaid from among the other members of the sisterhood, and to her present a pair of silver garters on her wedding day.

The year has rolled around, and while some of the members have failed to fulfill their vow, seven have become endowed with husbands and entered upon conjugal lives of the happiest description. Some of them have encountered parental objections; a few have been obliged to resort to elopements and even temporary concealments, but where is the maiden who would not respect her oath in such a case and brave the stoutest obstacles to its fulfillment? And as one after another has wedded, the magical garters have been handed over to the chosen bridesmaids, and in every instance she became the succeeding bride. The gift was in effect an election of the giver's dearest friend among the sisters to follow in her footsteps. The unwedded ones have high hopes, and in a few weeks it is believed that the society will be dissolved owing to circumstances over which not one of them will have absolute control because of having surrendered herself to a husband. Who shall say hereafter that Aphrodite is not vindicated?

OUR STREETS.

To the Editor of the Freeman: In a communication made not long since, I remarked that if the bluestone teams were allowed to draw their loads over our City streets it would be impossible to keep the said streets in order, roller or sweeper, or words of that effect. My object in this regard has only led to a firmer conviction that unless the City authorities shall demand that the driver of the vehicle shall bear with a proper relation to the load sustained, no good streets can be maintained in this City over which these loads are drawn. The City pavement is well laid, and with so much care only a few years since, is now deeply indented with the tracks of these loads. It is, however, not a matter of City concern, as it is on the line of the tramway, and is mentioned as showing the effect of this kind of traffic. It is now being largely transferred over Union and Hasbrouck avenues to Poughkeepsie, via the Strand. How long can any decent streets be maintained over this route with such loads traveling there? Only yesterday two loads of seven tons passed this way, just after a soaking rain, and these streets were, when improved, assessed on the adjoining property, were injured to a very perceptible extent.

Can the City afford it? It seems to me that it cannot. Look at some of the streets that have been assessed for their improvement and see the shocking condition they present, and the heavy cost some $15,000, in many places worn half way through. This is not a matter of City concern, as it is on the line of the tramway, and is mentioned as showing the effect of this kind of traffic. It is now being largely transferred over Union and Hasbrouck avenues to Poughkeepsie, via the Strand. How long can any decent streets be maintained over this route with such loads traveling there? Only yesterday two loads of seven tons passed this way, just after a soaking rain, and these streets were, when improved, assessed on the adjoining property, were injured to a very perceptible extent.

The above letter from Hon. James G. Lindsley brings prominently forward the question of the preservation of our streets. Union avenue was paved at large cost, and seventy-five per cent assessed on the adjoining property.

Other streets have been paved in the same manner. After such large expenditures, it is clearly the duty of the Common Council to protect these streets from injury and keep them in good order. But every one knows that Union avenue has not been kept in good order and is now in bad condition. The Common Council passes resolutions ordering about twice as much work on the streets as the working force employed by the city can do, and the result is the work is not done. For want of attention on the part of the city authorities, wagons carrying seven tons or more, with the ordinary narrow tire, are allowed to use the avenue and cut it to pieces. Unless this practice is promptly stopped, Union Avenue, which should be a fine drive, will soon be in a worse condition than an ordinary country road, and the property which has paid large assessments for the purpose of having good streets will be greatly injured. In no other city in the state will teams be permitted to draw such heavy loads without using wide tire. The stone teamsters may claim that they have a right to use Union avenue, and other paved streets, but it may be said that twenty thousand people residing in this city also have some rights in the streets which they have paid for. If the stone teams must use Union avenue it should be under such regulations as to width of tire, as will prevent them from destroying the avenue. As the matter now stands the city might better pay four times the cost of transferring these stone from the stone tramway at Wilbur to other places in the creek, rather than have Union avenue ruined. Nothing is more important to the city than good streets, and the Common Council cannot act too quickly in this important matter.

THE MONEY FEATURE IN CRONIN'S CASE.

The Chicago correspondent of the New York Sun presents a history of Alexander Sullivan's transactions. The narrative was furnished by Mortimer Scanlan, the Criminal Court Bailiff, and Patrick Cavanagh, to Judge Longnecker, as an incentive to him to seize the books of the defunct Traders' Bank and submit them to the grand jury for an examination of the individual accounts. They expect that in the process the account of Sullivan will turn up.

Their story is that Sullivan, while he was a member of the Clan-na-Gael triumvirate, went to Paris and demanded of Patrick Egan, then an exile in that city, $100,000 to carry out the aims of the physical force men in the United States. After long negotiations, in which Sullivan threatened to disrupt every Irish society in America and inaugurate revolution, he got the money, which was paid out of the funds of the Irish National League of which Egan was Treasurer, and brought the full amount to Chicago. There he turned over $18,000 to the Clan-na-Gael, and deposited $82,000 in the Traders' Bank. Scanlan discovered this fact when the bank's affairs went into the hands of the Sheriff. Bryan L. Smith, receiver of the bank, confirms the statement that $82,000 was placed to Sullivan's personal account, and was afterwards drawn out by checks. Mr. Smith not only proposes to put the books in the hands of the grand jury, but to assist in their examination.

It was this defalcation of Sullivan's that Cronin was engaged in tracing when he was murdered. He had caused one or more investigations to be made and had once brought Sullivan to trial, but this proceeding was a farce, and an acquittal was secured by working largely on the religious prejudices of members of the committee. Cronin was not satisfied and renewed his charges, disseminating them through the different camps of the society, and proposing to submit the whole subject to the convention which was to meet in Philadelphia in July. As he was winning supporters daily, the outlook for Sullivan was uncomfortable. Cronin was the most dangerous man among his enemies, because he had given attention to the embezzlement for years, and was prepared with a full array of evidence to press his charges.

The different Clan-na-Gael societies in the country are sending in their details of complicity with the crime, and of the charge that their order is a murder machine. There is every wish to accept this as truth, for it is unpleasant to believe that men who are regarded as good citizens, but who acknowledge membership in the organization, are abettors of a plan for inflicting the death penalty by a process not known to the law, and which would put the life of every citizen in danger who had the ill luck to offend it. The weight of public opinion is pressing down upon Sullivan, as the one person who had a motive for the plot and the power to carry it to a consummation. Sullivan is guilty of one cruel, cold-blooded murder, committed years ago, his easy escape from the consequences of which was not calculated to inspire in him a terror of the law.

WHERE CRIME IS ALWAYS EXPECTED.

Under the new Massachusetts license law hotels are placed under very strict rules. They can sell liquor only to guests. To be a guest one must register and hire a room. The mere act of registering is not sufficient. Probably the Massachusetts law will result in a room to "guests" two or three minutes, but a cent, and make a discount of a penny on the price of the drink.

It is a singular fact that in relation to every law for the restriction of the liquor traffic there is universal expectation of devices for evading and breaking it. It is not so with laws on other subjects. All persons are subjected to legal restrictions, which may prove more or less inconvenient according to circumstances. But they do not all go to work to nullify disagreeable laws, thus putting themselves among the criminal classes. It is reserved almost exclusively for the liquor trade to do this. There never was a law enacted in relation to the business which it did not violate and defy. Even the Sabbath, which all other vocations respect and observe, is regarded by it as an infringement upon valuable time, which is needed for business purposes. And yet saloon men are surprised that the people regard their business as an evil and call for stouter laws against it. It is time to talk about enforcing existing laws, since the prospect of getting better ones is not very flattering just at present. And if liquor men do not desire more stringent legislation, they should at least set the example of law-abiding citizens.

The American people do not like deliberate, persistent and professional criminals. And every law-breaker is a criminal. Here is a definition of "Crime" from Webster: "Any violation of law, either divine or human; an omission of a duty which is commanded, or the commission of an act which is forbidden by law." And "Criminal" is one who is "guilty of crime; tainted with crime." The Massachusetts landlord who adopts the device suggested in the quotation at the beginning of this article, makes a criminal of himself, and society will not fail to put the brand upon him.

A SISTERHOOD FOR MARRIAGE.

A little less than one year ago twelve New Haven maidens formed themselves into a sisterhood, and each swore an oath to her fellow members that she would be married before twelve months rolled around. It was also a part of the compact that the one first married should choose a bridesmaid from among the other members of the sisterhood, and to her present a pair of silver garters on her wedding day.

The year has rolled around, and while some of the members have failed to fulfill their vow, seven have become endowed with husbands and entered upon conjugal lives of the happiest description. Some of them have encountered parental objections; a few have been obliged to resort to elopements and even temporary concealments, but where is the maiden who would not respect her oath in such a case and brave the stoutest obstacles to its fulfillment? And as one after another has wedded, the magical charms have been handed over to the chosen bridesmaid, and in every instance she became the succeeding bride. The gift was in effect an election of the giver's dearest friend among the sisters to follow in her footsteps. The unwedded ones have high hopes, and in a few weeks it is believed that the society will be dissolved owing to circumstances over which not one of them will have absolute control because of having surrendered herself to a husband. Who shall say hereafter that Aphrodite is not vindicated?

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Star says the Democrats expect to carry the next State Senate. Confidently, we can tell our contemporary that whatever pleasure its readers may derive from contemplating that idea they will have to take out in expectancy. —Brooklyn Standard Union.

Nothing more indicative of the change that has come over the French people has yet been afforded than the fact that in the election for Senators in the Aisne and Doubs departments not a single vote was cast for General Boulanger. See transit "the man on horseback!" —Philadelphia Record.

Dr. Hammond says that for drinking purposes water should never be below fifty degrees. The cost of the ice that is used to cool water down to an unhealthy temperature added to the expense of the whisky that is used to warm it up again, is one of the things that is keeping so many people poor. —Rechercher Union.

"Les" Faulkner is one of the shrewdest and sharpest of bad men and his reputation is too well known to need comment. His shedding tears is a trick of the trade just as is bringing a man's wife into court with her babe in her arms to influence the jury in behalf of the man. "Les" ought to come to Auburn. —Auburn Advertiser.

It is said that of the senior class at Yale forty-five favor free trade, forty-three are protectionists, while eighteen desire a reform in the present tariff. These facts are of interest chiefly as a bar of comparison with the views the same 116 will express when rubbing against the world has changed their theories into practical ideas. —Utica Herald.

It is plain to see that Mr. Cleveland, after the campaign of 1888, is more liked, trusted and followed by his party than Mr. Tilden was after the campaign of 1876. Leadership of pre-eminence in the party Mr. Tilden held, without the pretense of rivalry from any Democratic quarter, until he relinquished his trust to Mr. Cleveland himself. It is apparently true that the party has no intention of permitting any one but Mr. Cleveland himself to check the disposition of the Democracy to regard the ex-President as the leader of its leaders. —Brooklyn Union, Dem.

There is no doubt that Mr. Cleveland at one time attributed his political success less to the Democratic party than to political forces outside of it, and entertained, if he did not deliberately plan, a scheme to seek for renomination on his non-partisan record. But he comes forward now as an old-fashioned, untutored, rock-ribbed, moss-barked Democrat. He is a partisan from Wayback. To the Democracy of his country his speech may be interpreted briefly: "You hear me a shoutin'!" —Rechercher Union.

I refuse to believe, however, the story that Lord Sackville, as a parting memento, presented to the contents of his pocket, a ring for use in the White House, and then left there his English servants to take the places of the colored servants who had been retained by President Cleveland. —Governor Hall.

That is right, Governor Hill; don't believe it. And your action in referring to such a malicious rumor as the above is a far less dignified proceeding for the Governor of the Empire state of the Union than it would be for President Harrison to call attention to your relations with William M. Tweed, the New York aqueduct job, the Assembly ceiling and about every other thing of which carion that has been lying around loose in the state of New York since you first donned your political knee-breeches. —Albany Journal.

OUR STREETS.

To the Editor of the Freeman:

In a communication made not long since, I requested that if the blue stone teams were allowed to draw their loads over our city streets it would be impossible to keep the sidewalks in order, roller or no roller, or words to that effect. My observations in this regard have only led to a firmer conviction that unless the City authorities insist upon the removal of the teams from the streets, the sidewalks will be a mass of mud and filth. It is a singular fact that in relation to every law for the restriction of the liquor traffic there is universal expectation of devices for evading and breaking it. It is not so with laws on other subjects. All persons are subjected to legal restrictions, which may prove more or less inconvenient according to circumstances. But they do not all go to work to nullify disagreeable laws, thus putting themselves among the criminal classes. It is reserved almost exclusively for the liquor trade to do this. There never was a law enacted in relation to the business which it did not violate and defy. Even the Sabbath, which all other vocations respect and observe, is regarded by it as an infringement upon valuable time, which is needed for business purposes. And yet saloon men are surprised that the people regard their business as an evil and call for stouter laws against it. It is time to talk about enforcing existing laws, since the prospect of getting better ones is not very flattering just at present. And if liquor men do not desire more stringent legislation, they should at least set the example of law-abiding citizens. The American people do not like deliberate, persistent and professional criminals. And every law-breaker is a criminal. Here is a definition of "Crime" from Webster: "Any violation of law, either divine or human; an omission of duty which is commanded, or the commission of an act which is forbidden by law." And a "criminal" is one who is "guilty of crime; tainted with crime." The Massachusetts landholder who adopts the device suggested in the quotation at the beginning of this article, makes a criminal of himself, and society will not fail to put the brand upon him.

The above letter from Hon. James G. Lindsley brings prominently forward the question of the preservation of our streets. Union avenue was paved at large cost, and seventy-five per cent assessed on the adjoining property. Other streets have been paved in the same manner. After such large expenditures, it is clearly the duty of the Common Council to protect these streets from injury and keep them in good order. But every one knows that Union avenue has not been kept in good order and is now in bad condition. The Common Council passes resolutions ordering about twice as much work on the streets as the working force employed by the city can do, and the result is the work is not done. For want of attention on the part of the city authorities, wagons carrying seven tons or more, with the ordinary narrow tire, are allowed to use the avenue and cut it to pieces. Unless this practice is promptly stopped, Union Avenue, which should be a fine drive, will soon be in a worse condition than an ordinary country road, and the property which has paid large assessments for the purpose of having good streets will be greatly injured. In no other city in the state will teams be permitted to draw such heavy loads without using wide tire. The stone teamsters may claim that they have a right to use Union avenue, and other paved streets, but it may be said that twenty thousand people residing in this city also have some rights in the streets which they have paid for. If the stone teams must use Union avenue it should be under such regulations as to width of tire, as to prevent them from destroying the avenue. As the matter now stands the city might better pay four times the cost of transferring these stone from the stone tramway at Wilbur to other places in the creek, rather than have Union avenue ruined. Nothing is more important to the city than good streets, and the Common Council cannot act too quickly in this important matter.

THE MONEY FEATURE IN CRONIN'S CASE.

The Chicago correspondent of the New York Sun presents a history of Alexander Sullivan's transactions. The narrative was furnished by Mortimer Scanlan, the Criminal Court Bailiff, and Patrick Cavanagh, the Judge Longnecker, as an incentive to him to seize the books of the defunct Traders' Bank and submit them to the grand jury for an examination of the individual accounts. They expect that in the process the account of Sullivan will turn up.

His story is that Sullivan, while he was a member of the Clan-na-Gael triumvirate, went to Paris and demanded of Patrick Egan, then an exile in that city, $100,000 to carry out the aims of the physical force men in the United States. After long negotiations, in which Sullivan threatened to disrupt every Irish society in America and inaugurate revolution, he got the money, which was paid out of the funds of the Irish National League of which Egan was Treasurer, and brought the full amount to Chicago. There he turned over $18,000 to the Clan-na-Gael, and deposited $82,000 in the Traders' Bank. Scanlan discovered this fact when the bank's affairs went into the hands of the Sheriff, Bryan L. Smith, receiver of the bank, confirms the statement that $82,000 was placed to Sullivan's personal account, and was afterwards drawn out by checks. Mr. Smith not only proposes to put the books in the hands of the grand jury, but to assist in their examination.

It was this defalcation of Sullivan's that Cronin was engaged in tracing when he was murdered. He had caused one or more investigations to be made and had once brought Sullivan to trial, but this proceeding was a farce, and an acquittal was secured by working largely on the religious prejudices of members of the committee. Cronin was not satisfied and removed his charges, disseminating them through the different camps of the society, and proposing to submit the whole subject to the convention which is to meet in Philadelphia in July. As he was winning supporters daily, the outlook for Sullivan was uncomfortable. Cronin was the most dangerous man among his enemies, because he had given attention to the embezzlement for years, and was prepared with a full array of evidence to press his charges.

The different Clan-na-Gael societies in the country are sending in their details of complicity with the crime, and of the charge that their order is a murder machine. There is every wish to accept this as truth, for it is unpleasant to believe that men who are regarded as good citizens, but who acknowledge membership in the organization, are abettors of a plan for inflicting the death penalty by a process not known to the law, and which would put the life of every citizen in danger who had the ill luck to offend it. The weight of public opinion is pressing down upon Sullivan, as the one person who had a motive for the plot and the power to carry it to a consummation. Sullivan is guilty of one cruel, cold-blooded murder, committed years ago, his easy escape from the consequences of which was not calculated to inspire in him a terror of the law.

WHERE CRIME IS ALWAYS EXPECTED.

Under the new Massachusetts license law hotels are placed under very strict rules. They can sell liquor only to guests. To be a guest one must register and hire a room. The mere act of registering is not sufficient. Probably the Massachusetts landholder will find a room to "guests" two or three minutes, for a cent, and make a discount of a penny on the drink for cash.

It is a singular fact that in relation to every law for the restriction of the liquor traffic there is universal expectation of devices for evading and breaking it. It is not so with laws on other subjects. All persons are subjected to legal restrictions, which may prove more or less inconvenient according to circumstances. But they do not all go to work to nullify disagreeable laws, thus putting themselves among the criminal classes. It is reserved almost exclusively for the liquor trade to do this. There never was a law enacted in relation to the business which it did not violate and defy. And yet saloon men are surprised that the people regard their business as an evil and call for stouter laws against it. A SISTERHOOD FOR MARRIAGE.

A little less than one year ago twelve New Haven maidens formed themselves into a sisterhood, and each swore an oath to her fellow members that she would be married before twelve months rolled around. It was also a part of the compact that the one first married should choose a bridesmaid from among the other members of the sisterhood, and to her present a pair of silver garters on her wedding day.

The year has rolled around, and while some of the members have failed to fulfill their vow, seven have become endowed with husbands and entered upon conjugal lives of the happiest description. Some of them have encountered parental objections; a few have been obliged to resort to elopements and even temporary concealments, but where is the maiden who would not respect her oath in such a case and brave the stoutest obstacles to its fulfillment? And as one after another has wedded, the magical garters have been handed over to the chosen bridesmaid, and every instance has become a successful bride. The gift was in effect an election of the giver's dearest friend among the sisters to follow in her footsteps. The unwedded ones have high hopes, and in a few weeks it is believed that the society will be dissolved owing to circum. stances over which not one of them will have absolute control because of having surrendered herself to a husband. Who shall say hereafter that Aphrodite is not vindicated?

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Star says the Democrats expect to carry the next State Senate. Confidentially, we can tell our contemporary that whatever pleasure its readers may derive from contemplating that idea they will have to wait in expectancy.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Nothing more indicative of the change that has come over the French people has yet been afforded than the fact that in the election for Senators in the Aisne and Doubs departments not a single vote was cast for General Boulanger. See transit the man on horseback!—Philadelphia Record.

Mr. Hammond says that for drinking purposes water should never be below fifty degrees. The cost of the ice that is used to cool water to a palatable temperature is added to the expense of the whisky that is used to warm it up again, is one of the things that is keeping so many people poor.—Rochester Union.

"Les" Faulkner is one of the shrewdest and sharpest of bad men and his reputation is too well known to need comment. His shoddy tears is a trick of the trade just as is bringing a man's wife into court with her babe in her arms to influence the jury in behalf of the man. "Les" ought to come to Auburn.—Auburn Advertiser.

It is said that of the senior class at Yale forty-five favor free trade, forty-three are protectionists, while eighteen desire a reform in the present tariff. These facts are of interest chiefly as a basis of comparison with the views the same 116 will express when rubbing against the world has changed their theories into practical ideas.—Utica Herald.

It is plain to see that Mr. Cleveland, after the campaign of 1888, is more liked, trusted and followed by his party than Mr. Tilden was after the campaign of 1876. Leadership of pre-eminence in the party Mr. Tilden held without the pretense of rivalry from any Democratic quarter, until he relinquished his trust to Mr. Cleveland himself. It is apparently true that the party has no intention of permitting any one but Mr. Cleveland to hold the reins of government. It is the Democracy to regard the ex-President as the leader of its leaders.—Brooklyn Union, Dem.

There is no doubt that Mr. Cleveland at one time attributed his political success less to the Democratic party than to political forces outside of it, and entertained, if he did not deliberately plan, a scheme to seek for renomination on his non-partisan record. But he comes forward now as an old-fashioned, unadorned, rock-ribbed Democrat. He is a partisan from back to back. To the Democracy of this country his speech may be interpreted briefly: "You hear me a shoutin'!"—Rochester Post-Express.

I refuse to believe, however, the story that Lord Sackville, as a parting memento, presented to the President-elect the contents of his wine cellar for use in the White House, and that the English servants to take the places of the colored servants who had been retained by President Cleveland.—Governor Hill.

That is right, Governor Hill; don't believe it. And your action in referring to such a malicious rumor as the above is a far less dignified proceeding for the Governor of the Empire state of the Union than it would be for President Harrison to call attention to it. Tilden held without the pretense of rivalry from any Democratic quarter, until he relinquished his trust to Mr. Cleveland himself. I refuse to believe, however, the story that Lord Sackville, as a parting memento, presented to the President-elect the contents of his wine cellar for use in the White House, and that the English servants to take the places of the colored servants who had been retained by President Cleveland.—Governor Hill.

That is right, Governor Hill; don't believe it. And your action in referring to such a malicious rumor as the above is a far less dignified proceeding for the Governor of the Empire state of the Union than it would be for President Harrison to call attention to it. Tilden held without the pretense of rivalry from any Democratic quarter, until he relinquished his trust to Mr. Cleveland himself. It is apparently true that the party has no intention of permitting any one but Mr. Cleveland to hold the reins of government. It is the Democracy to regard the ex-President as the leader of its leaders.—Brooklyn Union, Dem.

There is no doubt that Mr. Cleveland at one time attributed his political success less to the Democratic party than to political forces outside of it, and entertained, if he did not deliberately plan, a scheme to seek for renomination on his non-partisan record. But he comes forward now as an old-fashioned, unadorned, rock-ribbed Democrat. He is a partisan from back to back. To the Democracy of this country his speech may be interpreted briefly: "You hear me a shoutin'!"—Rochester Post-Express.

HAVOC CAUSED IN KANSAS AND OTHER STATES ON TUESDAY.

Nearly All the Telegraph Poles Along the Line of the Southern Kansas Railroad Blown Down—Other Property Destroyed—A Deluge of Rain—Other News.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

EMPORIA, Kansas, May 30.—Captain Milton Brown was the only person killed outright in the Clements tornado. His wife, however, is not expected to live, having had her leg terribly mangled and almost torn from her body. Their son Edward had his leg and shoulder broken. Miss Sarah Brown has an ankle broken and is internally injured, and a baby is also badly hurt. The storm was about 100 feet in width, and traveled almost around Clements, following the course of the Cottonwood River in a southwesterly course. More than a dozen farms are denuded of their buildings, and orchards and crops are destroyed. Captain Brown was a prominent member of the G. A. R., at Cottonwood Falls, and was a wealthy farmer. He came from Ross County, Ohio, shortly after the war.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—The storm of Tuesday and Tuesday night was general over Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, and delayed nearly all trains coming into Kansas City. Nearly all the telegraph poles along the Southern Kansas Railroad were blown down, and south of Iola, Kansas, there were many overflows. The trains on the Wabash were over seven hours late. The delay was caused by a wrecked freight train four miles east of Moberly. The constant rain softened the road bed at that point. The Chicago trains of the Santa Fe were delayed over an hour by the land slide at Courtney. At this point the rain had washed away a large portion of the cut, making a shelving ledge overhanging the tracks. This gave way piling trees, stones and dirt on the track. The Chicago & Alton tracks in Western Illinois were inundated, and at Slater a heavy landslide occurred, covering the track for hundreds of yards.

BERLIN, La., May 30.—Rain set in Tuesday evening in this section and continued without intermission until noon yesterday, flooding the lowlands and for a time putting a complete stop to farm work at the time when corn is in great need of cultivation. The storm caused thousands of dollars damage to the crop.

CHAMPAIGN, Ills., May 30.—More rain fell here yesterday than has fallen since last July. It is of inestimable value to corn, wheat and oats.

MARION, Ind., May 30.—An exceedingly heavy rain has fallen here during the last 18 hours and still continues.

MEXICO, Mo., May 30.—The rainfall of Tuesday, Tuesday night and yesterday was 4.9 inches, larger than ever before reported in this section. The rain was accompanied by heavy winds. Much damage was done to wheat.

SEVERE HAIL STORM IN VIRGINIA. By Telegraph to The Freeman.

CYCLONE OUT IN THE WEST.

HAVOC CAUSED IN KANSAS AND OTHER STATES ON TUESDAY.

Nearly All the Telegraph Poles Along the Line of the Southern Kansas Railroad Blown Down—Other Property Destroyed—A Deluge of Rain—Other News.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
EMPORIA, Kansas, May 30.—Captain M. P. Brown was the only person killed outright in the Clements tornado. His wife, however, is not expected to live, having had her leg terribly mangled and almost torn from her body. Their son Edward had his leg and shoulder broken. Miss Sarah Brown has an ankle broken and is internally injured, and a baby is also badly hurt. The storm was about 100 feet in width, and traveled almost around Clements, following the course of the Cottonwood River in a southwesterly course. More than a dozen farms are denuded of their buildings, and orchards and crops are destroyed. Captain Brown was a prominent member of the O. A. R., at Cottonwood Falls, and was a wealthy farmer. He came from Ross County, Ohio, shortly after the war.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—The storm of Tuesday and Tuesday night was general over Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, and delayed nearly all trains coming into Kansas City. Nearly all the telegraph poles along the Southern Kansas Railroad were blown down, and south of Iola, Kansas, there were many overflows. The trains on the Wabash were over seven hours late. The delay was caused by a wrecked freight train four miles east of Moberly. The constant rain, which began at that point, the Chicago tracks of the Santa Fe were delayed over an hour by the landslide at Courtney. At this point the rain had washed away a large portion of the cut, making a shelving ledge overhanging the tracks. This way way pillars, trees, stones and dirt on the Chicago and Chicago & Alton tracks in Western Illinois were inundated, and at Slater a heavy landslide occurred, covering the track for hundreds of yards.

BERLINGTON, Ia., May 30.—Rain set in Tuesday evening in this section and continued without intermission till noon yesterday, flooding the lowlands and for a time putting a complete stop to farm work at the time when corn is in great need of cultivation. The storm caused thousands of dollars damage to the crop.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 30.—More rain fell here yesterday than has fallen since last July. It is of inestimable value to corn, wheat and oats.

MARION, Ind., May 30.—An exceedingly heavy rain has fallen here during the last 18 hours and still continues.

MEXICO, Mo., May 30.—The rainfall of Tuesday, Tuesday night and yesterday was 4.9 inches, larger than ever before reported in this section. The rain was accompanied by heavy winds. Much damage was done to wheat.

SEVERE HAIL STORM IN VIRGINIA.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
NORFOLK, Va., May 30.—Monday night a severe hail storm passed down the south side of Albemarle Sound doing great damage to crops in the vicinity of Mackey's Ferry. Cotton is totally destroyed on several large farms.

HEAVY STORM IN CHINA.

By Cable to The Freeman.
HONG KONG, May 30.—A heavy storm has been raging for three days. Immense damage has been done.

The building was insured for only $300.

Children's Day will be observed by the several churches in this town.

A Planter's Experience.

"My plantation is in a malarial district, where fever and ague prevailed. I employ 150 hands; frequently half of them were sick. I was nearly discouraged when I began the use of Tutt's Pills.

The result was marvellous. My men became strong and hearty, and I have had no further trouble. With these pills, I would not fear to live in any swamp." E. RIVALL, Bayou Sara, La.

HAYOC CAUSED IN KANSAS AND OTHER STATES ON TUESDAY.

Nearly All the Telegraph Poles Along the Line of the Southern Kansas Railroad Blown Down—Other Property Destroyed—A Deluge of Rain—Other News.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

EMPORIA, Kansas, May 30.—Captain Miller Brown was the only person killed outright in the Clements tornado. His wife, however, is not expected to live, having had her leg terribly mangled and almost torn from her body. Their son Edward had his leg and shoulder broken. Miss Sarah Brown has an ankle broken and is internally injured, and a baby is also badly hurt. The storm was about 100 feet in width, and traveled almost around Clements, following the course of the Cottonwood River in a southwesterly course. More than a dozen farms are denuded of their buildings, and orchards and crops are destroyed. Captain Brown is a prominent member of the G. A. R., at Cottonwood Falls, and was a wealthy farmer. He came from Ross County, Ohio, shortly after the war.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—The storm of Tuesday and Tuesday night was general over Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, and delayed nearly all trains coming into Kansas City. Nearly all the telegraph poles along the Southern Kansas Railroad were blown down, and south of Iola, Kansas, there were many overflows. The trains on the Wabash were delayed seven hours late. The delay was caused by a wrecked freight train four miles east of Moberly. The constant rains softened the road bed at that point. The Chicago trains of the Santa Fe were delayed over an hour by the land slide at Courtney. At this point the rain had washed away a large portion of the cut, making a shelving ledge overhanging the tracks. This gave way piling trees, stones and dirt on the track. The Chicago and Alton tracks in Western Illinois were inundated, and at Slater a heavy landslide occurred, covering the track for hundreds of yards.

HELENBORO, Ia., May 30.—Rain set in Tuesday evening in this section and continued without intermission until noon yesterday, flooding the lowlands and for a time putting a complete stop to farm work at the time when corn is in great need of cultivation. The storm caused thousands of dollars damage to the crop.

CHAMPAIGN, Ills., May 30.—More rain fell here yesterday than has fallen since last July. It is of inestimable value to corn, wheat and oats.

MARION, Ind., May 30.—An exceedingly heavy rain has fallen here during the last 18 hours and still continues. The rainfall of Tuesday, Tuesday night and yesterday was 4.9 inches, larger than ever before reported in this section. The rain was accompanied by heavy winds. Much damage was done to wheat.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES.

DEAD HEROES OF THE WAR REMEMBERED HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

Memories of a Quarter of a Century Ago
The Going Away and the Home Coming
Of Ulster County Regiments—What A. T. Clearwater, J. J. Lison and Others Said.

Memorial Day is being as generally observed in this City and in Ulster County to-day as at any time since the great leader of the Union armies told the men of the South to keep their horses as they "would need them to cultivate the fields" and thus emphasized the sentiment that peace was more to be desired than war. Along the Hudson Valley and in the valleys between the Catskills and the Shawangunks to-day little children, bearing in their hands Nature's fairest offerings, have been escorted by army veterans to the village cemeteries and to family burial grounds and have covered with beautiful flowers the graves of the soldier dead. The day may well be called Memorial Day.

To those who lived in the stirring times of the struggle for the preservation of the Union it brings many memories. The mind reverts back to the time when the news came of the firing on Fort Sumter; to the time when the patriots of the Old Twentieth Regiment rallied around the stately banner and their standard emblazoned "This Hand for Our Country" and under their gallant leader, Colonel George W. Pratt, marched away like the minute-men of the Revolution.

It goes back to the time of the formation of the One Hundred and Twentieth Regiment, with the recruiting and brief encampment here and then the march to "Dixie." Memory also goes back to the formation of the One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth Regiment, and the departure of its members in the night time and without the cheers and tears that characterized the departure of their predecessors.

Memories come of the war meetings; of the hoisting of flags; of the burning of the great battles and of the news of the victory of Lee, when the church bells of the North rang out that one of the grandest struggles for the preservation of human liberty ever fought had been successfully concluded.

The boys were coming, and then the home coming, and the triumphal arches, the streets and the cheers for the soldiers. These memories are not the only ones, however. The gray-haired mother whose son sleeps beneath the little mound that to-day is marked with a cross, and whose heart is covered with beautiful flowers has memories that no heart but hers can feel.

There were sad-faced women in the various cemeteries here to-day whose lives are saddened by the memories of those who sleep there and others whose lives are brightened by the memories of those who sleep there.

As year after year rolls round, name after name disappears from the roster. Even those who escaped the bullets of the Confederacy must yield to the ravages of time. The old veterans, who were decorated with the Purple Heart, lower and fewer old comrades will march to the graves of those who have gone before.

GRAND ARMY EMBLEMS.

Comrades known in marches many, Comrades tried in dangers many, Comrades known in marches many, Comrades tried in dangers many.

Brothers ever let us be! Wounds or sickness may divide us, But whatever fate befalls us, Brothers of the heart are we.

Adversity by faith the clearest, Tried when death was near and nearest, Bound we are by ties the dearest, Brothers ever let us be!

And if spared, and growing older, Shoulder still in line with shoulder, And with his no thrill of pride, Brothers ever let us be!

By communion of the banner, Battle scars may show the victor, By the baptism of the banner, Battle scars may show the victor.

Creed not faction can divide us, Race nor language can divide us, Still, in the faith, we stand, Children of the flag are we!

—Miles O'Reilly.
